Meeting to Be Held March 13, Town Hall; 60 Per Cent Sign

Woodstock, March 8.—This village, long noted for its place in American culture and rated as one of the most progressive unincorporated communities in the east, is contemplating another step forward.

According to Supervisor Kenneth Wilson, under whose administrative capabilities the township has planned and executed several residential improvements, a meeting will be held Thursday evening, March 13 at Town Hall to discuss the formation of a water district.

Meeting with Supervisor Wilson and Town Attorney John Egan at 8 p. m. will be members of the town board, who will consider the petition for the district signed by approximately 60 per cent of the taxpayers in the proposed area. A minimum of 51 per cent is needed.

Also present will be representatives of the engineering firms of Keis and Holroyd of Troy, who have prepared a description and a map of the project.

Proposed Coverage

The district as contemplated by the engineers would serve the village as follows:

From the residence of Mrs. Grace Lasher, Bearsville road, to the Woodstock Country Club. Pipes would be laid half the distance of Plochman's Lane, west of the Woodstock-Saugerties road.

From the village center to the Byrdcliffe line on the Rock City Road, thence to property of Will Reynolds on the Overlook mountain road. In this vicinity a standpipe would be erected to provide gravity feed and to assure even flow.

Plans call for the construction of an infiltration chamber along the Sawkill creek on the Bearsville flats. All water service would be established west of the creek.

Would Serve Many

It is estimated approximately 350 to 400 families would be benefited by the service. In addition benefits would include business establishments such as the Woodstock Hotel, The Irvington, Deane's Diner, Peper's Garage, the Woodstock Garage, Hous's, Stowell's Pharmacy, the Woodstock Art Gallery, the News Shop, F. B. Happy's store, the Brass Rail, the Sea Horse, the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen, the Nook, Perkins Little Art Shop, Weathervane Studios, the Woodstock Library, the Reformed, Methodist and Lutheran Churches, Geiser's Art Shop, Allen Electric Company, Cousin's Appliance Store, Simmon's Electric, Carey's Delicatessen, Woodstock Post Office, Woodstock Town Hall, Woodstock School, etc.

The project also would provide water service for lateral streets and in addition calls for the laying of important hydrant outlets to give greatly increased fire protection. Hydrants would be within at least 500 feet of every house.

Service would be established on a water meter basis and bills probably would be rendered quarterly by the water department. Meter service has been found, it is said by authorities, to be the most economical method. Public Service Commission rates are so low surveys revealed, that householders may use water for maximum needs without building large bills.

A resident of Hurley today told The Freeman that meter service on the Hurley Water Company's mains costs approximately what Kingston service costs every quarter. There is a slight increase when hose outlets are used for lawn or garden purposes or for car washing.

The new district, it is felt by the proponents, would increase property values without undue assessment changes and would provide necessary improvements in health benefits particularly during the summer months when the village has a heavy resort business.

Ulster May Escape Special Taxes in View of Economy

Governor's Proposed Plan to Help Communities May Not Be Needed, Supervisors Say

It is unlikely that Ulster county would be required to take advantage of the proposed broad new local taxing powers which Governor Dewey has urged the Legislature to grant to localities.

In a special message to the Legislature Governor Dewey recommended six county levies which might be imposed to meet increasing costs of municipality government, including the support of education.

Those levies which could be imposed include a retail sales tax, a tax on motorcar ownership, a tax on restaurant and drink tax, tax on alcoholic beverage licenses, an amusement tax and license on vending machines. The proposed plan is estimated would bring in a maximum of $111,000,000 and go a long way toward meeting increased cost of local government. The proposed tax would begin July first if the county or municipality voted to impose the additional tax.

Since Ulster county has not had an unusually large budget and the real estate tax rate has been kept reasonably low, several members of the Board of Supervisors stated an opinion that it would not be necessary for the county, at least at this time, to put the measure into effect. However, should mounting costs throw additional tax burdens on real estate, it might be necessary at some future time to take advantage of the special tax proposal.

There was no official statement forthcoming from the Board of Supervisors at this time since the proposal had not been studied and just how the provisions would affect Ulster county is not known.

It is believed however that at least for the present the Ulster County Board of Supervisors would not be required to vote any of the new proposed taxes.

In certain school districts, municipalities and cities where the tax limitation on real estate has been reached, the proposed new local taxes would provide relief and probably be placed into effect should the recommendation of the governor be adopted by the Legislature. The City of Kingston is now at the 2 per cent limitation stage.

Midnight Brawl Is Reported

Court House Janitor Is Unconscious for Most Part of Last Night at Kingston Hospital

Convicted Once

Turk Is Arrested by 2 City Detectives in Uptown Hotel

Anthony Alecca, Ulster county court house janitor of 63 Gill street, is in the Kingston Hospital with a concussion and possible fractured skull, while Kingston police are holding Michael Turk, alias "Spike" Turk, of 214 Church street, Poughkeepsie, on a charge of second degree assault, following an early morning altercation at 65 Gill street.

Arraigned before City Judge Matthew Cahill in city court this morning, Turk, waived examination and was ordered held for the grand jury. Bail will be fixed by a higher court.

According to sketchy information, Alecca was severely injured in a fistie brawl with Turk after an argument, the cause of which has not been disclosed. The time of the brawl was set at about midnight.

Alecca was conveyed to the Kingston Hospital in a Conner's ambulance where a preliminary examination by Dr. Irving Pauker disclosed a concussion. The injured man was unconscious at the time.

Alecca regained consciousness during the night and his condition this morning was described as good by Kingston Hospital authorities.

Turk Also Treated

Turk also was treated at the Kingston Hospital shortly after midnight for scratches and bruises about the face. He then went to the Governor Clinton Hotel where he had registered for the night and was picked up about 2 a. m. by Detectives Wesley Cramer and Clarence Brophy who were called into the case.

Alecca was found unconscious on the floor of his home by Dr. Sidney Pauker who was at that address when police headquarters were notified of the fight by Mr. Alecca's family.

An examination by Dr. Pauker this morning revealed a concussion, multiple lacerations of the left ear and side of the head and contusions about the knees. X-rays were taken and the results are awaited to determine if Alecca sustained a skull fracture.

Son Calls Police

The police were first notified of the case at about 1:10 a. m., when Alecca's son called police headquarters and stated that his father had been injured in a fight and that an ambulance was needed. He also said that Dr. Pauker, who had been summoned, wished to talk to an officer.

Officers Guernsey Burger, Jr., and Kenneth Stratton were dispatched to that address in a police patrol car. When they arrived, they were informed by Dr. Pauker that he had found Alecca unconscious on the floor and suffering apparently from the effects of a kick in the head. Conner's ambulance was called and Alecca was conveyed to the hospital.

Detectives Take Over

Detectives Brophy and Cramer were called into the investigation and started the search for Turk who was located at the Governor Clinton. He was placed under arrest and confined to the city hall jail overnight.

According to police records, Turk has one felony conviction.

La Guardia Favors Congress of Labor To Bring Stability

Would Have Four Groups to Handle Various Industries; Asks Slower Action

Washington, March 8 (P)—Fiorello H. LaGuardia today urged Congress to use its influence to achieve the merger of all labor organizations into an "American Congress of Labor."

He recommended creation of a committee of Congress members and representatives of labor and industry to study this proposal, as well as pending legislation to change the labor laws.

LaGuardia, co-sponsor of the Norris-LaGuardia Anti-Injunction Act enacted in 1932, said in a statement prepared for the Senate Labor Committee:

"Under our form of government, one national parent body for labor would fit admirably and would result in greater benefit and security for wage earners and stability for industry."

The former New York mayor testified as the Senate committee.

Sun Spots Trouble Radio Over Large Portion of World

(By The Associated Press)

Sun spots and magnetic disturbances interfered with radio communications over a large part of the earth's surface today.

Press Wireless, Inc., in New York reported conditions erratic. Associated Press radio circuits to London were styried for a time.

A spot on the sun 75,000 to 80,000 miles long was reported yesterday by Director Roy K. Marshall of the Planetarium at Franklin Institute, Philadelphia. He said the spot was clearly visible without a telescope, if the observer used a photographic film to shield the eye. Dr. Marshall said the spot was one of the largest in the past two or three years, and would disturb radio transmission until Monday or Tuesday.

A Bismarck, South Africa, the Harvard University Observatory reported yesterday an eruption of sun spots which it said likely would cause widespread radio fading and various magnetic disturbances. The observatory said the spots were converging over about 500,000,000 square miles of the sun's surface and would reach the center by tomorrow.

British Government to Make Next Move About Palestine

Lake Success, N. Y., March 8 (P)—The next move toward placing the explosive Palestine problem in the hands of the United Nations appeared today to be up to the British government.

The United States U.N. delegation declared last night that it could not agree to any immediate U.N. procedure for handling the knotty Holy Land question until it is presented to the United Nations in some "concrete" form.

Most U.N. sources said they believed Britain would waste no time in officially filing the case with Secretary General Trygve Lie. They said Britain might possibly ask that the issue be submitted to the General Assembly with a recommendation that a commission of inquiry be established now to study the case.

The idea for a commission was put forward earlier this week by Lie but he could not get any specific answer on it from the majority of the Big Five powers.

The U.S. delegation was understood to be opposed to such a commission, but before the idea is discussed delegates want Britain formally to place the issue before the United Nations.

Faris El Khoury, chief spokesman here for the Arab States and a member of the Security Council, informed Lie yesterday that he was opposed to a commission of inquiry.

The Syrian delegate said he supported the view of the U.S. delegation that the British should present the case with a definite proposition for the United Nations to act upon.

Khoury suggested three possible steps for Britain to take:

1. Declare Palestine independent immediately and notify the United Nations of the move as the British did in regard to Trans-Jordan.

2. Continue the mandate over Palestine and present it to the Trusteeship Council.

3. Resign the mandate, which would automatically throw the country to the United Nations for supervision.

British sources said Britain had intended all along that the Palestine case should be handed to the General Assembly. They added, however, that in taking this course Britain wanted a commission of inquiry to be set up immediately so it could work until the assembly meets in September. The commission then would report its findings to the assembly for action.

There was no explanation why the British have been reluctant to hand the case to the United Nations. British spokesmen earlier this week said it was possible the case would be presented before today.

Wicks' Committee Cites Danger, Chaos in Filing Methods

State Records of Education Department Bring Out Proposal for Records Division

Albany, N. Y., March 8 (P)—A legislative committee investigating the Education Department said today that the department was keeping state records under "chaotic and dangerous conditions," and it recommended that a new division of records be established.

The special committee reported to the Legislature that a summary of department affairs awaited further detailed studies.

It promised surveys of the Board of Regents, the office of the education commissioner, 15 divisions, 25 bureaus and 11 professional boards.

Legislation to implement removal of records-keeping from the Educational Department was introduced earlier this week at the request of Senator Arthur Wicks, committee chairman.

"The Education Department, whose primary concern is the administration of the state's system of education, should not be charged with responsibility relative to the preservation and disposal of records of other departments and agencies of state government," the committee said.

The proposed records division would be part of the executive department.

The committee recommended that management of historic sites be transferred to the State Museum, and the state historian transferred to the State Library.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

Snowed In
Duaneburg, N. Y., March 8 (P)—Highway Superintendent Arthur Tulloch received this note from a farmer residing on a town road:

"When the snowplow opens the road past my place tell the men to be careful. There's a drift about 10 feet deep and 50 feet long just before you come to my house. My car is under it somewhere. I'm not quite sure just where."

Turn About
Rochester, N. Y., March 8 (P)—Ole Carlson spent the first part of the winter in his native Norway—famous for its skiing and winter sports—and didn't see a flake of snow. He returned to Rochester in the midst of the season's worst storm.

Sings For Freedom
Chicago, March 8 (P)—John Peterson, 29, sang and danced his way to freedom when he appeared before Municipal Judge Victor A. Kula.

Peterson, arraigned on a disorderly conduct charge, told Judge Kula he had imbibed too freely but, he explained, customers in several taverns had insisted on buying him drinks because they liked his singing and dancing.

Judge Kula asked him to display his talents. Peterson complied with a song and then went into a tap routine.

"Discharged," Judge Kula said after the demonstration.

trated on becoming a concert pianist. Among those who heard her play at Mr. Chasins' studio was Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony, who gave her a scholarship to attend the Berkshire Music Center. She studied chamber music with Gregor Piatigorsky and played with the orchestra and chamber music groups.

She has appeared on the air over NBC and CBS networks in addition to several engagements with Station WQXR. CONSTANCE KEENE

Miss Keene won nationwide attention last spring when she was "pinch hit" for Vladimir Horowitz at the last minute in Springfield, Mass. A Naumburg Foundation award winner who made her debut in Town Hall two years ago, Miss Keene was born in Brooklyn and began the study of piano at the age of 4½. During the next eight years while learning the rudiments of piano, she kept winning every contest in which she was entered including the gold medal of the New York Music Week Association, first prize in the contest of the Madrigal Society of New York which offered financial help to the most promising young pianist in the city and for four straight years she was first in the New York Federation Music Clubs in competition with hundreds of young pianists.

Given a scholarship to study with Abram Chasins, she concentrated on becoming a concert pianist.

Among those who heard her play at Mr. Chasins' studio was Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony, who gave her a scholarship to attend the Berkshire Music Center, and the student chamber music with Gregor Piatigorsky and played with the orchestra and chamber music groups.

She has appeared on the air over NBC and CBS networks in addition to several engagements with Station WQXR. She played more than 100 appearances through U.S.O. and in the fall of 1945 she made her first professional concert tour under the management of Arthur Judson, president of Columbia Records.

The final concert of this season for the association will be Wednesday, April 9, when "Christophers" young Irish tenor, will be presented.

Admission to all concert is by membership card only. Reserved seat sections for both concerts will be the entire balcony, main floor from the front through Row S. All seats starting at Row T on the main floor to the back of the auditorium will be for the lower rate memberships.

Search for Peace at Moscow

By RYLAND MORIN

Paris, March 8 (AP)—For France, the Moscow Foreign Ministers' Conference represents the greatest and perhaps the last opportunity she will ever have to find security from the eternal menace of the Germans.

Three times within the lifetime of a man, the gray rhodes have crossed the Rhine.

In 1871, France made the best of her defeat and settled with a bribe of land and money. In 1918, an exhausted France was overruled by her allies on the question of occupying Germany and splitting it up politically.

In 1947, French delegates are determined to write into the treaty a set of political, military and economic plans which they believe will make it impossible for Germany to attack again.

The documents for those plans run into thousands and thousands of words. They can be summarized in one word: Security. For the French, nothing is so important as security from that danger in the east. There is no present for the average Frenchman, and there can be no future for him until Germany is so changed, fundamentally, that she cannot or will not go into war.

Three French Proposals

To achieve security, the French propose three things:

1. Internationalizing the Ruhr so that that vast force will no longer be controlled by Germans and turned to making war material.
2. Separating the Rhineland from the body of Germany in order to form a buffer state between France and the Reich.
3. Creating a federal union of German states, designed to bring a form of democracy to the German people.

Regarding the first, the French plan would place the Ruhr coal mines under the control of the allies. Two corporations would be organized to administer them. At the same time, the idea is to remove the steel mills from the Ruhr and re-establish them in France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. Instead of sending coal from these countries to the Ruhr, as has been the case for the past two centuries, the French would bring German coal out of Germany.

Council Is Authority
The supreme authority for this giant industrial complex, on which so much of Europe depends, would be the United Nations Security Council. The actual administrators would be directors appointed from each of the allied nations.

The second phase of the French plan, relating to the political separation of the Rhineland, is more than a century old.

French politicians have long argued that the Rhineland Germans are a different people from the inhabitants of the rest of Germany. They are predominantly Catholic by religion. Their psychology and temperament—according to this French theory—is more Franco-Belgian-Flemish than it is German.

The French would like to see an independent state created from the Rhineland Germans. They believe that, in time, it would tend to gravitate in its politics and economics toward the west.

Federal German State

As for the third section of the French blueprint, it stipulates simply the creation of a federal German state, headed by a president, with delegates from the representatives of the individual states.

He would name the federal ministers and preside at cabinet meetings.

The "parliament" would be composed of delegates from the states and remain in office for four years. French authorities say they are not ready to confer the powers of a centralized government on this regime.

Unlike the United States and Great Britain, who favor a 20-year period of occupation, the French plan sets a time limit. "The end of the occupation," a French official said, "will come when Germany is denazified and her war potential is removed."

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, MARCH 8, 1947

LIVING IN ONE'S ERA

In revolt against what they term the "dehumanizing" combination of factory work and congested city living, are the "decentralists". They would have man re-discover his "whole personality" by existence in rural homesteads and by self-creation of necessities. Machinery's mass production, by forcing competition for world markets, caused both world wars, and most of the world's ills, they believe. The School of Living at Suffern, N. Y., and Arthur Morgan's Community Service Inc., at Yellow Springs, O., are examples of this philosophy which glorifies handicraft and a social economy divorced from the machine.

There is much appeal in the idyllic picture of a small community where citizens are liberated from industrial pressures and standardization. But the Machine Age has come, and after it the Atomic Age. Trying to avoid the actualities of the era in which one is born means running into inconsistencies. Who of the decentralists would forego the vast intellectual benefits made possible by the machine age in publishing? Would they give up planes, trains and automobiles in favor of the ox cart? In sickness would they turn from the mechanized therapy of a modern hospital?

A sane life pattern can be maintained within the framework of an era. Effort can be directed to making the present as good as possible for the greatest number now living. Man can achieve fulfillment in any age, in any circumstance, if he will but use his will and his intelligence.

HIGHWAY SLAUGHTER

Unless present fatal automobile accidents are reduced, insurance and safety companies estimate that the annual toll of victims may reach 44,000 in 1947 and 50,000 in 1950.

The American public ought to be impressed by these figures and shocked into observing the best rules of safety. Unless there is a way to overcome public indifference, the annual slaughter will continue.

It is pointed out that twice as many Americans have been killed by automobiles in the past 25 years as by all the wars in the nation's history.

It is suggested that those who would protect themselves cannot do better than follow the advice of the taxi driver who said, "Always drive like everybody else was crazy."

CHANGES IN INDIA

England is giving up India and Burma, and some time ago granted independence to Egypt. There has been nothing like this since the gradual downfall of the Roman empire, when little by little the soldiers were withdrawn from one province, then another. First Dacia, corresponding roughly to the modern Hungary, later Britain, then the outlying parts of the present-day France. It must have made gloomy hearing to the Romans of that day, and plenty of Englishmen will feel the same about today's withdrawals.

INTERNATIONAL OUTLAWRY

Congress is reported as preparing to vote a big, new fund for Germany, to keep that nation from starving. It is on the edge of general starvation now, and Herbert Hoover, rescuer of nations, is on the job.

It is a strange world. A whole nation runs amuck, stealing and killing, and law-abiding nations have to raise armies and go to immense trouble and cost, to kill or subdue the outlaws. Then finally they all settle down and resume a more or less normal, decent way of life until the same trouble-makers, or some other people, start in and go on the war path, killing and destroying as before. Like naughty children they all seem to be "good now", but nobody ever knows when or where the more belligerent groups will break out again.

There is no more important task in the world, individually and collectively, than to make sure that such barbarous outbreaks of militarism shall not occur again. Nor is this done satisfactorily by a loan or a small alliance with this nation or that, but only by

REECE VS. MORSE

In the case of Carroll Reece, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, versus Senator Wayne Morse, the moot question is, what is a Republican and why?

The law does not specifically define a Republican. Anyone may so declare himself. A Democrat, a New Dealer, a Socialist or a Communist may register as a Republican, may hold office as such. No law requires him to be part of a political party. He may vote against every measure which the Republican party desires to have passed. He may even vote as a Democrat and there is nothing the Republicans can do about it but call him a bad boy.

In the United States Senate, there are three who go by the Republican label who are by ideas, habits of mind and actions no more Republican than Claude Pepper.

They are Senators Wayne Morse of Oregon, Aiken of Vermont, and Tobey of New Hampshire. They are strictly on their own. As the Republican majority in the Senate is at most six, the elimination of these three makes it three by simple arithmetic. Senators Lodge and Sutherland of Massachusetts, on their own at times. Senator Vandenberg is a great man and makes up his own mind largely by his own conclusions. Senator Cooper of Kentucky moves slowly into party position—too slowly.

So the American people elected a Republican Congress and got a mixed-up Senate. There is no party caucus to party line, no party position, just a few men who enjoy being in Washington.

Curiously, these men are within their legal rights. Each was elected to represent his state, not his party. Each is bound by his conscience, not by his party. If a Senator has neither a conscience nor a party, he can play it in every which direction. On the other hand, each Senator can do as he chooses and hope that it does him some good even if it does the country great harm.

The Democrats are in the same situation except that they are somewhat better disciplined because they have, most of them, gone through the Roosevelt mill where politicians were ground fine by the wheels of smearing publicity straight out of the White House. But all the rules of conduct that apply to Republicans apply to Democrats except one.

In the Democratic party there is only one candidate for President, Harry Truman. In the Republican party, there are as many candidates for the Presidency as there are Senators and Governors. No other Democrat has a chance of nomination and therefore that incentive to attract front-page publicity is wanting. In the Republican party everybody is a candidate. And that is an awful disease. It makes a politician stick himself out front so that his face, his voice, his stance is familiar. It causes simple human beings to become exhibitionists. Once the gentleman is sure that he has no chance, his nature changes. He reverts to a real human being. But that takes time.

Meanwhile, Carroll Reece, whose competent organizing abilities helped to elect many of these anarchical exhibitionists, has the tough task of reminding them that the country voted the New Deal out of office because it expected the Republican party to accomplish certain specific things in the realm of labor relations, taxes, reducing the cost of government and keeping Communists and their "Fronts" out of public office.

Reece knows that the Republicans can be defeated in 1948 and that all these wonderful candidates for the Presidency and the Vice Presidency can discover themselves in November, 1948, sucking their wounds as Landon, Wilkie, and Dewey did in other years. It is all right for Morse, Aiken and Tobey to play at being wonders to behold, but they will not amount to much if the Democrats regain the Senate and the House, which can happen. It is not beyond possibility.

For it is known that even Republicans are distressed and discouraged by the Senators who have no sense enough to know that as a party, they can amount to something; as prima donnas, they resemble a tenth-rate traveling opera company singing in hired costumes.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

SAVING TEETH IN CHILDREN

Now that the life span is 65, an increase of about 15 per cent since 1900, it means that there are a great many more old people than ever before in history. Unfortunately this means that there are more old people without teeth or wearing artificial teeth, as our ability to preserve our teeth has not kept pace with the increase in the life span.

However, just as the increase of the life span began by the saving of the lives of children—overcoming and preventing the diarrheas, diphtherias and other diseases of childhood—so can we begin to increase the length of life of our teeth if we begin by saving the first and also the permanent teeth of children.

That dental decay among children can be reduced as much as 40 per cent by a series of applications of sodium fluoride to their teeth is reported in the Journal of the American Dental Association by four Minnesota dentists, Dr. O. A. Jordan and Vern D. Irwin of Minneapolis; Dr. O. B. Wood, Virginia, and Dr. James A. Allison of Hibbing. The experiment extended for over a two-year period with several hundred school children, six to twelve years old, at Hibbing, Chisholm, and Virginia, in northern Minnesota. These dentists found that three treatments to the surfaces of the teeth, but less than eight, were necessary to obtain best results.

Where one treatment was given was a reduction of about 5 per cent, two treatments 14 to 15 per cent, three treatments 21 per cent and with four treatments, 40 per cent.

"The treatments consisted of a thorough cleaning of the teeth by a dental hygienist and the application by a dentist of a 2 per cent solution of sodium fluoride to one-half of the teeth of each child. A year later, the same dentist checked the teeth, recording any new decay on the treated and untreated teeth in the mouth of each child. Total cost averaged only $1.60 per child. It will be of interest to dentists and physicians to learn that cleaning the teeth first and applying a 2 per cent solution (no weaker or stronger than 2 per cent) of sodium fluoride gives such excellent results at such low cost. This is a good beginning in the saving of teeth.

LaGuardia Favors

made ready to close six weeks of hearings on bills to revamp the labor laws.

Four National Departments
LaGuardia suggested that the proposed American Congress of Labor, consolidating the A.F.L., C.I.O. and all other unions, be divided into four national departments:

1. Transportation, including railroad, water, air and land workers.
2. Mining, taking in coal, all minerals and oil.
3. Professional and entertainment workers.

4. All other skills and trades.
LaGuardia coupled his merger recommendation with a plea that Congress avoid "hasty" action on labor legislation. But matters, he said, should be studied by his proposed special committee, which would report not later than next October.

The study committee would be made up of four senators, four representatives, four labor officials and four industry leaders. Of the Congress members, four would be Democrats and four Republicans.

LaGuardia said the "much needed" reorganization of labor "cannot be brought about by legislation," but "might be achieved through the good offices of such an influential committee."

Suggests Covering Measures

He said the study should cover legislation which would "provide" appropriate measures "to prevent strikes against the government or any government agency."

2 Set up machinery for settlement of jurisdictional disputes "without costly strikes." This would cover union disputes over recognition, as well as quarrels between unions over which should do certain work.

3 Devise a way for settlement of strikes which affect the health and safety of the people or the national economy.

LaGuardia said that once such a strike called, a proper tribunal should be provided to which either side could appeal, issue joined, the strike terminated and the dispute settled.

Noting that collective bargaining, industrial agreements on a nationwide scale and the closed shop have been the subject of severe attack, LaGuardia said:

"An evaluation of any or all three of these institutions . . . will disclose that they have brought improvement in production, in labor management relationship, and in orderly procedure. These three points would be the subject of study by the committee."

Are Still Undecided

Despite the lengthy hearings, many members of Congress were still undecided today about major proposals for labor legislation. The appearance of John L. Lewis before the Senate group apparently did not help the senators decide what, if anything, ought to be done about coal strikes.

Committee Chairman Taft (R., Ohio) told Lewis "It seems to me something has to be done." And he told reporters there would "apparently" be a new coal strike July 1.

But when a reporter asked Taft today whether he had decided what the government, including Congress, should do in case of a July 1 coal strike, Taft replied: "No."

Senator Ives (R., N.Y.) was asked the same question. He said: "I honestly don't know. He added that a solution 'certainly didn't appear' during the Lewis testimony."

Ives said that throughout the six weeks of hearings, in almost every major point, the testimony produced contradictory views, and no illuminations.

Ives, an expert on labor-management relations and former head of the New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations, said he had not made up his mind on many points.

On proposals to outlaw industry-wide bargaining and the various forms of closed shop contracts, Ives was emphatic. He is against them. He wants those questions to be thoroughly studied by a joint congressional committee.

Ives said he may introduce a bill of his own.

Pilot Canuit Is Able To Keep Office Dates

Walter H. Canuit, who suffered a severe foot injury on Thanksgiving eve when his plane in which he and County Attorney Fred Stang were enroute to Utica was forced down by a snowstorm at Schenectady, has sufficiently recovered to be able to spend some time today in his real estate office at 243 Fair street.

Mr. Canuit suffered a fracture of his foot which will necessitate keeping it in a cast until July. County Attorney Stang was only slightly injured when the plane in the storm and darkness struck a tree near the Schenectady airport and was wrecked.

Roland Ladd

to Mechanicville to question Ladd to complete their records.

Faces Felony Charge

Chief Noonan, of Mechanicville, said Ladd would be arraigned on two charges of burglary preferred by Saratoga county police and for first degree larceny for the theft of a car. The New York State Police have lodged this charge against Ladd.

Ladd's companion, Robert Bruce McWhinnie, 17, also of Mechanicville, was captured by Robert S. Chesterman, a resident guest at the Governor Clinton after he had been drafted by the police to assist in the search for McWhinnie.

McWhinnie is being held at the county jail without bail for action of the grand jury on a charge of first degree robbery.

Says Snow Got on Nerves
Ladd's statement, Chief of Police Noonan of Mechanicville was a confession that the snowbound hills of Schoharie county where he had been in seclusion since February 18 finally got on his nerves.

Ladd said that after firing the shot which started the chase, he shot along the tracks and walked all night long in what he thought was a northwesterly direction.

The next morning, Ladd said, he was picked up by a farmer who drove as far as a small hamlet known as Franklinton near Coxsack. There he was able to induce the farmer to take him on a helper and he spent the last several days chopping wood for the farmer. The farmer's name was not revealed by the police chief.

Thumbed Way to Surrender

After the severe storms of the past few weeks Ladd found life in the snowbound hills just a bit too rugged and he decided to give himself up. He hitchhiked into Mechanicville, walked into police headquarters and identified himself as the fugitive from justice.

The circumstances surrounding Ladd's escape from local police began to unfold about 8:10 p. m. on the night of February 17. He was driving a 1936 Packard sedan.

Robert Bruce McWhinnie, accosted by Patrolman Janasiewicz near the police box at Academy Green and asked for directions to the Salvation Army. They told the patrolman they desired a night's lodging.

Janasiewicz's suspicion was aroused and he followed the two youngsters who were standing by the police box became alarmed and made a break from the patrolman.

Shot at Patrolman

Janasiewicz shouted at the two fleeing men to halt but Ladd responded by sending a shot ringing over his head and then he disappeared into the marshes behind the hotel.

McWhinnie bolted into the Governor Clinton Hotel and went to the second floor where he knocked on the door of an apartment occupied by Mrs. Chesterman. He held the elderly woman at bay with a gun, while the police were mobilizing their forces and after about half an hour, he appropriated Mrs. Chesterman's hat and coat and attempted to make a getaway via a rear door escape.

Chesterman, who was armed and had a permit to carry a gun, was waiting for McWhinnie when he came down the escape and ordered him to put up his hands. Although he was armed, McWhinnie offered no resistance and submitted meekly. He was turned over to Officers James Burns and Earl Schoonmaker who were assisting Janasiewicz in the search.

Ladd still carried the pistol which he had used in firing the shot at Janasiewicz, Chief Noonan said. One bullet was missing from the chamber.

ment $80,000 by the expeditious manner in which he completed a building program under his charge. Capt. Steinmetz told the court he could recommend Gottfried's services as "very patriotic."

Stator, under cross-examination by Assistant U. S. Attorney Frederick N. Block denied that he would lie in his testimony to protect Forman.

Irving Jargowski, an employee at the Pure Rock plant from December, 1942 to April, 1943, testified that during that period he did not see Gottfried at the Ellenville works more than five or six times.

The trial will continue on Monday before Federal Judge Harry E. Watkins.

J. Rifkenbary Will Head Cancer Drive In Ulster County

April has been designated as "cancer control month" throughout the United States and during that time the annual campaign for contributions to the work of cancer control will be conducted by the Field Army of the American Cancer Society. The campaign will be later officially designated by Presidential proclamation.

County Treasurer Jay W. Rifkenbary has been designated as Ulster county chairman for the drive here. Arthur A. Davis, secretary-treasurer of the Kingston Trust Company, has been selected as treasurer.

Locally it is not intended to make a house to house canvass but contributions will be solicited throughout the county and town committees will be appointed to whom contributions can be sent. Anyone desiring to make a contribution may also send it to either Chairman Rifkenbary directly or to Treasurer Davis.

Cancer, one of the most dread diseases of this era is annually taking thousands of lives and a portion of the moneys derived from the canvass next month will be devoted to research work in the effort to control this deadly disease. It is now secured in the United States 25 per cent will be used for research and 60 per cent will be retained within the state where collected. This money will be available for use in any approved project within the state and would be available for use locally for any project which the Medical Society might designate. At the present there is no definite, approved program in Ulster county but the county would be eligible for a portion of the New York state fund for research work.

Should the proposed cancer clinic which is now under discussion be placed in operation and approved by the Medical Society as a participating institution.

County Chairman Rifkenbary will later name a committee to carry on the campaign in the city and county.

Satisfactory Amendment Seen for Teacher Pay Bill

Albany, N. Y., March 8 (AP)—Threats of further strikes among New York's 77,000 public school teachers subsided today as upstate and metropolitan leaders indicated that the proposed salary bill would be amended to the benefit of the profession.

A request for a strike poll came before the executive committee of the State Teachers Association, but a spokesman for the upstate policy makers implied it would be rejected.

New York city teachers, meanwhile, scotched talk of a strike, such as closed Buffalo's schools for a week, with a prediction that Governor Dewey's education committee would recommend changes in the much-criticized permanent salary program that they and others had asked.

Amendments to the salary bill, which was introduced this week, are expected by Monday. How far they will go toward meeting the teachers' demands has not been disclosed.

Search for Peace at Moscow

By REILMAN MORIN

Paris, March 8 (AP)—For France, the Moscow Foreign Ministers Conference represents the greatest and perhaps the last opportunity she will ever have to find security from the eternal menace of the Germans.

Three times within the life-span of a man, the gray yorshes have crossed the Rhine.

In 1871, France made the best of her defeat and settled with a bribe of land and money. In 1918, an exhausted France was overruled by her allies on the question of occupying Germany and splitting it up politically.

In 1947, French delegates are determined to write into the treaty a set of political, military and economic plans which they believe will make it impossible for Germany to attack again.

The documents for those plans run into thousands and thousands of words. They can be summarized in one word: Security.

For the French, nothing is so important as security from that danger in the east. There is no present for the average Frenchman, and there can be no future for him until Germany is so changed, fundamentally, that she cannot or will not go to war.

Three French Proposals
To achieve security, the French propose three things:

1. Internationalizing the Ruhr so that that vast force will no longer be controlled by Germans and turned to making war materials.

2. Separating the Rhineland from the body of Germany in order to form a buffer state between France and the Reich.

3. Creating a federal union of German states, designed to bring a form of democracy to the German people.

Regarding the first, the French plan would place the Ruhr coal mines under the control of the allies. Two corporations would be organized to administer them.

At the same time, the idea is to remove the steel mills from the Ruhr and re-establish them in France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. Instead of sending coal from these countries to the Ruhr, as has been the case for the past two centuries, the French would bring German coal out of Germany.

Council Is Authority

The supreme authority for this giant industrial complex, on which so much of Europe depends, would be the United Nations Security Council. The actual administrators would be directors appointed from each of the allied nations.

The second phase of the French plan, relating to the political separation of the Rhineland, is more than a century old.

French politicians have long argued that the Rhineland Germans are a different people from the inhabitants of the rest of Germany. They are predominantly Catholic by religion. Their psychology and temperament—according to this French theory—is more Franco-Belgian-Flemish than it is German.

The French would like to see an independent state created from the Rhineland Germans. They believe that, in time, it would tend to gravitate in its politics and economics toward the west.

Federal German State
As for the third section of the French blueprint, it stipulates simply the creation of a federal German state, headed by a president who is elected from among the representatives of the individual states.

He would name the federal ministers and preside at cabinet meetings.

He would have no portfolio of his own.

The "parliament" would be composed of delegates from the states and remain in office for four years. French authorities say they are not ready to confer the powers of a centralized government on this regime.

Unlike the United States and Great Britain, who favor a 20-year period of occupation, the French plan sets no time limit.

"The end of the occupation," a French official said, "will come when Germany is denazified and her war potential is removed."

Gives Tips on Longevity, Calls Whiskey Good Tonic

Chicago, March 8 (AP)—Dr. Edward L. Bortz, a specialist in diseases of the aged, says that whiskey is probably "the most useful aid" a physician can enlist in treating elderly patients.

Dr. Bortz, who is associate professor of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School, also said that whiskey is "a splendid tonic, a lift to the spirits and soothing to the jangled nerves."

"Whiskey is certainly one of the best sedatives when used in adequate quantity," Dr. Bortz told the annual clinical conference of the Medical Society yesterday. He gave these tips to maintain vitality in the aged: Less food but plenty of fresh fruits, adequate elimination, adequate rest, purposeful activity, preservation of a sense of humor, cultivation of contacts with younger people, intellectual growth, continuous education, no retirement, social security, and a useful outlet for their activity.

Washington, March 8 (AP)—Chairman Taft (R-Ohio) called the Senate Republican Policy Committee together today to canvass what he said is a "wide difference of opinion" over the extension of rent controls. Lloyd Nine Plans Banner Year for Coming Campaign

Members of Lloyd American Legion Post baseball team already are making preparations for the coming season and indications are that this year's ball club will be a first-rate organization if present plans follow through.

A number of the Lloyd members have taken their gloves out of moth balls and are limbering up their arms. With the coming of better baseball weather, additional players are expected to report for initial practice sessions.

This year's team will be managed by Frank LaFalce, coach of Highland High School's football and basketball team. LaFalce, an ex-marine lieutenant, began his interest in baseball as a mascot for the same team. Later he played shortstop for the Lloyd nine and later with Ithaca College.

The Lloyd team also may obtain the valuable services of Attorney Law to assist the club in battling drunks. Law is now coach of athletics at the Wallkill Medium Security Prison.

Additional help may be forthcoming from Bill Churchill of the Lloyd Post who pitched and defeated Grover Cleveland Alexander in a game with the A.E.F. in 1918. Churchill is reported anxious to not only give pointers to the team's pitcher, but to hurl a few innings as well.

The Lloyd club is open to challenges from American Legion and V.F.W. teams in Ulster, Greene, Dutchess, Rockland, Orange, Sullivan and Columbia counties. Teams interested in booking games are requested to contact Dave Murphy, American Legion, Highland.

Bob East returns to action Sunday evening when he opposes Ralph Gardner. Play commences at 7:30 o'clock.

Britain Loses Out As Military Power

Dublin, March 8 (AP)—Capt. Hugh J. Delargy, Labor member of the British Parliament from Manchester, wrote in an Irish newspaper today that "Britain can never again be a military power of the first order."

"It is bled white by war," he said in a dispatch from London published in Prime Minister Eamon de Valera's Irish Press, for which Delargy is parliamentary correspondent.

Delargy recalled that Winston Churchill once remarked that he had not become prime minister to "preside over the liquidation of the empire."

"Winston Churchill is prime minister no longer, and even if he were, the result would still be the same," Delargy wrote. "The process of disintegration is too certain for the resistance of even a thousand Churchills... never in the world's history did an enormous empire come to such a sudden end."

Wadlin Fosters Bill For Prison Employees

A bill to amend the Civil Service correction laws in relation to retirement of certain employees of the state institution at Napanoch was introduced by Assemblyman John Wadlin at Albany recently.

The bill would provide for full service credit under retirement provisions provided that "on or before July 1, 1948, any employee who was an employee at the state institution at Napanoch before July 1, 1924, during such time as the provisions of the retirement law were in effect, and who has been continuously in service since such time."

It further provides that "A prior service certificate shall be issued by the comptroller to each such member certifying to such service commencing prior to July 1, 1924, to the time of retirement."

Ex-Yonkers Chief Dead

Yonkers, N. Y., March 8 (AP)—Former Police Chief William A. Kruppenbacher, 63, who retired Tuesday as head of the Yonkers police force, was found dead yesterday near his home with a bullet wound in the head and his own revolver nearby. Detective Lt. William J. Conroy said Kruppenbacher was asked to retire last New Year's Eve by Public Safety Commissioner Patrick O'Hara, who said the resignation was necessary for departmental morale. He had served in the police department for 40 years and had been chief from 1940 until his resignation.

Three Buses Will Carry Cage Fans To DUSO Playoff

Kingston High Varsity Leaves 'Y' at 5:15; Students to Depart at 5:45 P.M.

Three chartered buses transporting school students, alumni and other fans to the Kingston-Liberty DUSO League basketball playoff in Middletown tonight will leave the Y.M.C.A. this evening at 5:45 o'clock. The Kingston High squad is expected to depart at 5:15 o'clock from the "Y."

Only 25 tickets are still available for tonight's game out of 400 allotted to the local school. Ray Woodard, chairman of the ticket committee, told The Freeman this morning "We've sold about 375 already and expect to get rid of a few other before we leave for Middletown," Mr. Woodard opined.

Tonight's playoff contest will decide the champions of the DUSO League for the 1946-47 campaign. Liberty won the first round with five victories in a row and Kingston came back to top the second half with the same record in league play.

Local fans not traveling on the chartered buses are advised to be in Middletown early. The game is slated to start at 7:30 o'clock sharp.

Two Champions To Play for Crown; Capture Doubles

New York, March 8 (AP)—Having wrapped up the doubles championship between them, Jack Kramer and Bob Falkenberg, those traveling tennis titans from Los Angeles, meet today for the national indoor singles title in the tournament finals at the Seventh Regiment Armory.

At the same time, the women's finals will send Doris Hart of Great Britain, against Pauline Betts, the women's world court champion from Los Angeles.

Falkenberg earned his shot at Kramer, the outdoor king and first ranking amateur of the country, when he came from behind to eliminate Billy Tibert of Wilmington, Del., in the semi-finals last night 7-9, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

It was the third major triumph over Tibert in less than a year for the 21-year-old National Inter-collegiate champion who also knocked him out of the Seabright Invitational and National Outdoor tournaments last summer.

Kramer and Falkenberg won the doubles championships last night by downing Tibert and Frank Shields in a five-set match which lasted until well after midnight and which left Falkenberg hanging on the ropes. The scores were 6-3, 5-7, 7-5, 6-1.

Miss Hart breezed it to the women's singles finals with a 6-3, 6-2 triumph over Mrs. Helen Pederson Rihany of Cambridge, Mass., the champion of the past two years. Like Kramer, Miss Betts won her way to the finals in the previous day's play.

The tall, blonde Miss Hart paired with Barbara Scofield, a Miami (Fla.) University teammate, to win the women's doubles championship by defeating Mrs. Rihany and Kay Winthrop of South Hamilton, Mass., 6-1, 6-1.

This course will be conducted by a safety specialist from the North Atlantic area office and is offered absolutely free by the Red Cross as a community service.

Good swimmers are invited to contact Red Cross Headquarters, 237 Pine street, telephone 1038, and register for the life saving instructors' course.

Interest Is Shown at First Meeting of Legion Nine

Keen interest was shown at the first meeting of the Rosenblat-Tillson American Legion Post baseball team this week when preliminary plans were made for the coming season.

All prospective players who have not registered as yet for the squad are requested to watch for the date of the next meeting when the team's roster is expected to be completed.

Backers of the team hope to secure Gus O'Neil of Binnewater to supervise the squad this summer. O'Neil played quite a bit of semipro baseball on Long Island.

Navy Cagers to Engage V.F.W. at 'Y' Tonight

CHARLIE TIANO

A BOXING SAGA ENDS: Carmine Virgilio's pugilistic obituary probably is not a matter of immediate concern to the colorful, unpredictable Bridge City bantam but as a local favorite he appears to have gone to the well just once too often.

Carmine will recover from a badly sprained, perhaps broken hand, but we doubt seriously if he can regain the prestige that has been his for more than a year in local rings. Virgilio did have a sprained hand Thursday night, but unfortunately he had it before he entered the ring. Nobody knew it any better than Virgilio and it is difficult to condone his actions.

We feel that Carmine was badly advised. Certainly his handlers must have known of Virgilio's condition. It was reported a couple of weeks ago in Fightkeeper. But they permitted him to go on, knowing that he couldn't last a round and realizing that the fans were being cheated. Carmine's alibi was a weak "I thought I could get by."

Referee Joe Vozdik could easily have called the bout "no-contest" pending an investigation by the inspector of bouts of the circumstances surrounding the debacle. Instead, he gave Carmine the benefit of the doubt and declared it an official contest.

Some fans will raise the question of how Virgilio passed the right physical examination given every boxer by Dr. Maurice Silk, the club physician. The answer is simple. Virgilio's manager, Steve Folsch, made sure that Carmine's hands were bandaged, a pugilist of Virgilio's caliber would not be guilty of any subtlety and didn't give the matter a second thought. After all, a fighter's hands are his only weapon and you don't normally expect a boxer like Virgilio to sell himself short. Apparently Thursday night was not one of those normal nights.

ANENT NEW HEROES: Life has a strange way of balancing the books. And while Virgilio was making a fadeout after the most hectic cycle in local amateur boxing, a new, formidable rival for the affections of the Kingston populace emerged from one of the greatest boxing bouts this town has ever seen. We refer, of course, to Al Huribut, of Rome, N. Y., who kayaked Cowboy Jimmy Brightwell of Oklahoma in a three-round carnage that was a throwback to Neanderthal age.
